

Capital Hash House Harriers – Run 2053 - Rambo – Palace Coup

The pack gathered, there was excitement in the air, something was brewing and the pack could smell blood. The circle to start the run was called with the stand in GM announcing that there had been a bloodless coup at the top of Hash (although Crash and Burn's last words as GM were ...Et Tu, Flagon!). Seriously, C&B was unable to continue as GM due to both work and personal reasons. Your fearless committee decided that a full time GM is needed for Hash and Hidden Flagon was duly appointed, at the same time, just as Batman needs Robin, Batfink needs Karate, Rocky needs Bullwinkle, Hidden Flagon needed a trusted sidekick, and Centrefold was duly appointed.

Meanwhile, back to the run. With the promise of Rambo nosh and a good run (possibly set by Infallible) the pack set off around Pearce. Although the Hash was sorely tested when the run went straight past the start near the end, but the thought of Pate (and that the dray was going to the drink stop) kept the hash from finishing early.

Run Report – Toy Boy – a crap run only made worse by being reminded of Infallibles old house as well as getting to the drink stop and Rambo arriving late. A score of 2.

Walk Report –Sunbean – a little saunter around Pearce and Mawson, drink stop late, a score of -.15

Returns – Two Fathers

Charges

Most of the Pack got a Gurnsey, the most notable was the catfight between Gerbils and Kwhine. Also Infallible for his Christmas run of 1989, nearly 20 years ago but indelibly inked into the minds of those who suffered.

Awards

Little Prick – Poo

PPP – given by Sunbean to someone

Teletubbie –Mc Taf is taking the award on an Australian tour.

FRB –

Pearl Necklace – Poo

Big Prick – Mixo

Birthdays/Anniversaries

Two Fathers and the guy who wrote some book

Jokes

Rambo and Sunbean

Next week's run

Run 2054-2055 – Perisher

Run 2056 – Phillip Oval – infallible setting, Rambo noshing